Consent for Oral Surgery

Occasional complications may arise during any oral surgical procedure. These include, and are not limited to, swelling, bruising, bleeding, discomfort, bone fracture, jaw joint pain, inability to open mouth fully, discoloration of skin, infection, chipped teeth, exposure of sinus, loosened crowns and bridgework. Some oral surgical procedures can cause a numbness of lip, tongue and chin. Usually this is temporary, but in some cases this can be permanent.

I hereby acknowledge that I have read, understand and have been explained the risks involved with oral surgical procedures. I still choose to proceed with treatment.
